WOMAN'S STORY OF SEASIDE TRIP WITH ARMISTON A 'FAKE'

Sworn Statement Is Made To Examiner By Mrs. Seilaff

NEW ANGLE IN TEMPLE CASE

Offered Good Pay To Tell Her Story, Is Affiant's Plea

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 13.—(AP)—The Examiner, in a copy-righted story, today says Mrs. Loraine Wiseman McDonald Seilaff, $18 a week seamstress, has confessed that her story of having shared a seaside cottage at Carmel with a sister, the anonymous "Miss X" and Tennis G. Orniston, former Angelus temple radio operator, was a fake for which she was to receive $5,000 from Aime Semple McPherson. The admission was made in a sworn statement.

Sometime after Mrs. McPherson reappeared witnesses were found at Carmel, Calif., who said Orniston had occupied a cottage at Carmel a part of the time that the evangelist was missing, with a woman who looked like Mrs. McPherson.

The alleged confession climaxed a dramatic meeting between Mrs. Seilaff and her twin sister, Mrs. Virila Kimbell, of Oakland, and is said to have been made at the direct request of the latter. They met in the newspaper office Mrs. Seilaff having been taken under guard from her cell in the county jail, where she had spent two days since her arrest Saturday, on charges of issuing worthless checks.

The sisters kissed and after a consultation with her lawyer, Mrs. Seilaff announced her intention of "making a clean breast of the whole thing."

She then proceeded to dictate her statement, which was acknowledged later by a notary. Mrs. Seilaff began her affidavit by stating that she was approached in San Francisco on about July 30 by a man who gave his name as "Mr. Martin" and who asked her if she would come to Los Angeles on "some work which would pay good money and would only take a few weeks or not all of that time."

She said the man could give her only a few details but informed her that the work offered was in connection with the McPherson case. She stated that she was instructed to send a telegram to District Attorney Asa Keyes, of Los Angeles, declaring that her sister, who was in the east, had been with Orniston at Carmel and that she had wired the sister to return immediately. The same day Keyes received a wire from San Francisco signed "Della Owen."

Mrs. Seilaff said she left that night for Los Angeles. Unable to reach Keyes over the telephone upon her arrival here, she said she went to Angelus temple.

"I had some time getting in because no one knew me, but I told them that it was in regard to the Carmel case and that I had come to help Mrs. McPherson out," Mrs. Seilaff said.

"I talked with Mrs. Kennedy and Mr. Veitch, one of her attorneys," her statement continued. "I could not tell them much because I did not know how to go about it until I got some information. I met Mrs. McPherson for just a few minutes that day."

Mrs. Seilaff said she remained in town two days during which time she wired to the temple "quite a number of times" talking with Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. McPherson.

"During these few days I had no talk with Mrs. McPherson alone with the exception of just a moment when Mrs. McPherson told me it was alright to go ahead," the woman related.

"She told me to go ahead," she continued to dictate "and they would pay all my expenses and that if I would do this I would be well paid."

CITIES INFESTED BY THE MOSQUITO

Lack of Campaign Is Felt In Albany-Decatur Now

Recent rainy weather has brought to pass exactly what health officials, earlier in the year, warned against. The Twin Cities now are infested with mosquitoes.

Citizens complain loudly against the mosquito in the spring and early summer is felt now in the invasion of the pests, which appeared to be innumerable.

This year for the first time in several seasons, no campaign was waged to eliminate the mosquito, health officials declaring no funds were made available for that purpose, despite their repeated urging that money be subscribed to oil ponds, wells, and other places here the mosquito might breed.

As a result of the failure to use these preventative measures, the recent rains have given the pests every opportunity to multiply. The health authorities warned that a rainy season would cause much discomfort and possibly more than the usual amount of fever.

Woman Injured In Automobile Crash

A woman whose name is given as Mrs. Eargle was painfully but not seriously injured Sunday in an automobile accident which is said to have occurred about three miles this side of Hartselle. Mrs. Eargle sustained cuts about the head and face and was considerably bruised.

It is understood that the car in which she was riding had stopped with tire trouble and that she had stepped from the car. With considerable traffic on the road she stepped upon the running board of the car to allow vehicles to pass. An automobile with several occupants struck the rear of the car upon which she was standing throwing her to the ground. She was taken to Baugh's Infirmary where her wounds were dressed. She has returned to her home.

Worms Are Thick In South Morgan

That the cotton worm is thick in south Morgan county is indicated by the statement here today by J. B. Patterson, Lacon man, to the effect that the worm is prevalent in all fields. The southern end of the county, however, has been particularly fortunate, in that the past has been kept under control.

Holiday Finds Vast Numbers Viewing Two Sites

GIANT FILL ON OTHER SHORE

Right-of-Way Goes Through The Thick Forest

Work goes steadily forward on the Tennessee river and Swan Lake bridges.

Manifesting unusual interest in what is going on in and about these cities, hundreds of people visited the sites of both bridges Sunday and though many an untrained eye was unable to fathom the great amount of work which is being done, each visitor realized that the work of building the two bridges is one of the finest steps forward that these cities and the state has made in a great many years.

The Koss Construction company has now pushed its piers beyond the center of the muddy stream, soon to flow beneath the concrete arches of the Tennessee river bridge and has placed the fourth arch into position. Preliminary work for the approaches and abutments on both sides of the river has been started.

The Dugger Bridge company is pressing forward through the marshy head waters of Swan Lake, the new bridge to cross just at the head of that lake and offering one of the most beautiful views in the section when the drive is once opened to traffic.

A 15 foot fill has been made on the new Bee Line highway routing from the Limestone shore of the Tennessee to well beyond Swan Lake bridge, the new road to enter the Bee Line highway either at the Mooresville road intersection or at a point nearer the overhead Southern Railway bridge, three miles north on the Bee Line road.

The fill stops abruptly at the site of the Swan Lake bridge and then is started again where the bridge is to be completed on the opposite shore. Much work has been done in clearing away the forest, thru which a right-of-way had to be cut.

The new road will not be a great distance from the present route of the Bee Line highway and though very high, it is probable that the highway department will establish railing on either side to prevent automobile accidents. Date of

GIRL'S CONFESSION MAY SAVE LIFE OF CONDEMNED YOUTH

Ruby Ray Insists She Killed Atlanta Grocer

BOYKIN DOUBTS STORY OF GIRL

Declares Confession Effort To Prevent The Execution

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Belief that Ruby Ray, state prison inmate, who yesterday told officers that she shot and killed William H. Cheek, grocer, during an attempted hold-up here last December, was the actual slayer of her husband, was expressed today by the widow.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Sept. 13.—Ruby Ray, inmate of the state prison farm here, today held to her story that she fired the shot which killed William H. Cheek, following an attempted hold-up of the latter's Atlanta grocery store last Christmas eve.

Miss Ray, who was sentenced to six years as an accomplice to the slaying, yesterday told Warden B. H. Dunaway that she and not Jack Wilson, committed the murder. Mel Gore, convicted as an accomplice, is under sentence to die in the electric chair here tomorrow.

Theodore Berry is under sentence of life imprisonment and police have conducted an unsuccessful search for Wilson, who they believe was the actual slayer.

"I'm the Jack Wilson in the case," she said, adding that she decided "to fix the blame on Wilson because he was a fugitive from justice."

Solicitor General John A. Boykin, in Atlanta last night, declared he regarded the confession of the girl as an attempt to save Gore from the chair.

"There is no doubt in my mind," he said, "that Jack Wilson fired the shot that killed Cheek. His identity has been established conclusively."

The Ray girl's statement was made near Gore's cell and the condemned man leaned against his

Car Plunges 75 Feet, Nobody Hurt, Crashes Into a Tree

Plunging down an embankment, said to be 75 feet in height, and crashing into a tree in a Ford sedan, is the unusual event recorded in an automobile accident Sunday about 1:30 near Blount Springs, Ala., along the Bee Line highway. Some damage was done to the car when it smashed into a tree.

Gus Bassett, well known local man and his sister, Mrs. McGwier, were enroute to Albany-Decatur when the accident occurred, the car going off the road and speeding down the steep fill. Mrs. McGwier was declared to have been driving.

Mrs. McGwier was brought into Albany Sunday night by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Papenburg, who were returning from Birmingham. Mr. Bassett returned in another car bound in this direction. Long lines of cars blocked the highway as people wondered at the narrow escape from death of the well known local people.

Junior C. C. President Finds Twin Cities Are Well Known

J. H. Smith, traffic man for the Decatur Cornice and Roofing company, and president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Albany-Decatur, has returned from his vacation, part of which was spent in the east.

While away Mr. Smith conferred with several representatives of various industrial enterprises with which the Albany-Decatur Junior Chamber of Commerce have been negotiating, looking to the selection of the Twin Cities as locations for Southern branches. Mr. Smith declared the Twin Cities are well and favorably known in these circles and he was optimistic over the outlook for bringing one or more of these plants here.

Mr. Smith will spend a few days as the guest of relatives in Falkville before resuming his duties with the Decatur Cornice and Roofing company.

Ellenen Workers Busy 24 Hours

Employees of the Louisville and Nashville railroad here are still working 24 days each month and no indication has been given yet of the restoration of the six-days-a-week working schedule. The men now are working 12 days each half month. The employees were at work Saturday, but the extra day was thrown in because of the holiday Monday in observance of Labor Day.

Davis Trial Set Here For Tuesday

The trial of A. L. (Shorty) Davis, charged with slaying Jeff Howell, of Hartselle, is scheduled to be heard in circuit court beginning Tuesday. It was expected a large crowd will gather for the second hearing of the noted case. Howell was shot to death on Second avenue and Davis was placed under arrest a short time afterward.

Variety of Causes Aid In Boosting The Death Total

POISONED RUM TAKES ONE LIFE

Body of Youth Found On Tracks Of The Central of Georgia

BIRMINGHAM, Sept. 13.—Six violent deaths and 13 injured from a variety of causes are reported in Alabama over the week-end. Of the dead, one is a suicide, one was smothered, one was stabbed to death, one was run down by a train, one was killed by an automobile and one was a victim of poisoned liquor.

The dead are: Mrs. Bill W. Lowe, 922 South 26th street; H. A. Christmus, 1521 Alois avenue; Charles Riley, formerly of Birmingham; Wilson Thomas, Dothan; I. N. Wilcox, Arkdell, Ala.; Adam Langston, negro, Andalusia. The injured are: Mrs. J. B. Denman, Anniston, fractured hip; Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Brightwell, Aberdeen, Texas, cuts and bruises; Burton Denman, Anniston, cuts and bruises; Olin Camp, Alabama City, probably fatally injured; Percy Stanfield, Alabama City, probably fatally injured; Will Bodina, Alabama City, serious injuries; Arthur Brown, Alabama City, cuts and bruises; Charles Hicks, Gadsden, cuts; Bill W. Lowe, 922 South 26th street, believed dying; W. C. Holmes, Dothan, broken jaw bone; Jesse Nabors, 6008 Sloss avenue, fractured hip; a farmer named Preuit, Calera.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill W. Lowe were rushed to a local hospital last night suffering from the effects of poisoned rum, it was stated. Mrs. Lowe died shortly afterward and the body is at an undertaking company, where an autopsy will be held. Lowe, a traveling salesman, is said to have intimated that the liquor was poisoned after it arrived at the house and that he "knew who did it." He failed to confirm this report today, however.

Suffering from partial paralysis he is in a dangerous condition. With an artery in his right arm severed by a knife, H. A. Christmus died in a local hospital late yesterday. R. A. Bynum, 619 North 19th street, is held on a charge of murder in connection with the stabbing.

The fight occurred at 18th street and 10th alley north. According to Deputy Sheriff H. E. Badger, who was driving with his wife at the time, saw the fight and attempted to interfere. Later he arrested Bynum.

I. N. Wilcox, Arkdell, Ala., merchant, who was found dead at his store Saturday with two bullet holes over his heart, was declared a suicide by the coroner's jury. Ill health was blamed.

The mutilated corpse of a man believed to be Charles Riley, 25, formerly of Birmingham, was found yesterday on the Central of Georgia tracks near Childersburg by two youths. Mrs. Maude Coleman, 127 1-2 South 20th street, has gone to the scene of the killing to attempt his identification.

Mrs. Coleman, prior to her departure, doubted the identity, stating her son had been in the north three years and that she knew nothing of his return to Alabama. It was impossible to tell from the position of the corpse whether he had been struck by a train or had fallen between the cars.

HE GOT HELP AT NEARBY HOUSE

Lawrence Officers at Work Monday Checking Story

Two youths, giving the names of Arvell Morrison and George Lusk, both said to reside in Indiana, were held in Lawrence county jail in Moulton today on charges of assault with intent to murder, while officers investigated the strange story related by T. A. Bowden, alleged victim of an attack by the youths last night.

Bowden is said to charge the defendants with having taken money and his clothing from him and to have thrown him from a freight train in the vicinity of Town Creek, Lawrence county. He made his way to a neighboring house and procured help. The arrest of the youths followed in Tusculum, according to word received here.

Bowden was said, in a dispatch received here, to have received a wound in the head and to have been bruised and shaken by his enforced departure from the train. The incident was alleged to have occurred about 9:30 o'clock.

Bowden today was reported as planning to go to a hospital in Birmingham for treatment. His nose was said to be broken. Lawrence county officers today still were engaged in checking up the details of the strange story, which attracted wide interest throughout Lawrence county.

One report reaching The Daily stated that Bowden was in Moulton today, but officers there stated they had not seen him.

Drivers Pleased With Hill Repair

Many drivers are well pleased with the temporary repair of Echols Hill, leading into the southern limits of the city of Albany. The condition of the road has been improved greatly within the past week, during which time forces of the city were placed on the thoroughfare, using cinders and dirt to patch the surfacing. Through drivers realize that the repair is only temporary, many were pleased that some steps have been taken to do away with the poor condition of the road.

HONOLULU. — Various localities have their own methods of conducting the real estate business but one of the most important in Hawaii, outside of the offices operating for real estate business alone, are the so-called "hui" organizations which have sprung into prominence with the present activity at Waikiki beach and the beaches on windward Oahu.

The word "hui" (pronounced hooey) is Hawaiian and is defined in the dictionaries of that language as a "coming together." It represents a pooling of interests in a common purse to put some project through. In the old days, the Hawaiians joined together for planting or fishing and each separate organization was known as a "hui."

The advantage of the hui is that it enables the small fellow to get in on a chance for profit. Clerks, stevedores, yardmen and housemaids find in the organization a place to put their meager earnings and by these combined resources carrying out business deals of no mean value.

The Hawaiians and Chinese have an especial liking for "hui" organizations and more than one, putting his small holdings into a common fund for the purchase of real estate has seen handsome profits as a result of the present active interest in island lands. These organizations seldom incorporate, preferring to operate through one individual in whom they trust, and who is counted on to watch out for the best opportunities of investing the funds.

Passengers arriving here on the Taiyo Maru said that Tenko Nishida, founder of the "Itosen" sect, although he traveled on a first class ticket, spent his time helping the crew wash decks and scrub brass fittings. He also ate with the crew in the steerage quarters. Nishida has come here to spend several months preaching the gospel of his sect, the basic principal of which is "labor is prayer." From here he will continue on to the mainland. He is about 60 years of age and is known as the "Socrates of Japan."

Masso Kajita, a Japanese resident of the island of Maui, took his life long friend Matsuzo Tani and Tani's two little girls for an automobile ride. Crowded too close to the edge of a narrow mountain road, Kajita's car overturned and Tani and his children were killed. Finding that Kajita had no driver's license, the district judge sentenced him to serve 15 days in jail and find him $100. Kajita took the sentence and fine cheerfully, but decided that they did not meet the ends of justice. So after serving his jail sentence, he drowned himself in the waters of Kahului harbor. Friends of the dead man say he felt that, however, unwittingly he was responsible for the death of three; that for the remainder of his days he would be a marked man among his associates if he continued to live among them, but if he voluntarily followed Tani into the spirit world he would leave behind the unblemished name of an honorable man. This purpose, the Japanese say, Kajita accomplished.

Assessed valuation of real property of the city and county of Honolulu in a period of four years has soared to the total of $158,230,507 or an increase of $60,000,000. Commercial deposits in the banks of the territory during 1926 were $44,861,828 as compared $39,101,344, in 1925. Savings deposits were placed at $2,989,564 in 1926 as against $21,703,311 in 1925.

One of the most interesting court sessions ever had in this city was that presided over by Judge E. K. Massee of the circuit court when he in company with court attaches and a small detachment of lawyers embarked in a fleet of three small rowboats navigated by Japanese fishermen to watch a series of experiments in Palama Basin to prove that refuse from certain pineapple canneries was poisonous to marine life. In place of a pair of scales and a blindfold, Judge Massee carried a wire fish basket. Fish were placed in the basket and immersed in the water at the point

Now "Man-Scouts" and "Woman Scouts"—What's YOUR "Good Turn" Today?

THE "one-good-turn-a-day" motto of the American Girl Scouts is one that might well be adopted and observed by grown-ups as well as youngsters.

And, for that matter, so it is by a great many adults who find time to do useful and unselfish things that otherwise would go undone. They are creating an unofficial order of "good scouts." One elderly lady who lives near Central Park, New York has made it her custom for many years to go into the park with a bag of English walnuts every afternoon before dusk and call the squirrels for their daily feeding. She goes along the unfrequented walks calling "Bobby, Bobby!" and all the squirrels come scampering, for they know her voice.

Another New York woman takes it upon herself to go about rescuing homeless cats from the streets in order that they may be given care in one of the various homes provided for this purpose. At the Hide-a-Wee Home and similar institutions a stray cat or dog is given shelter until a home has been provided for it by some household desiring a pet.

Relief for the patient dray-horse is the aim of another woman, who makes it her practice to urge drivers not to leave the nosebags on their horses after the animals have finished eating. Often a driver attaches a nosebag for the horse and then goes off to lunch himself, forgetting the animal's discomfort when it has finished

AUBURN EXPERTS DIRECT POISON

Advice Given About Plan For Ending Worm Attack

AUBURN, Ala., Sept. 13.—(Special)—The second generation of army worms on cotton has appeared throughout the northern half of Alabama, according to information received at Auburn. In line with expectations and forecasts, they appeared in large numbers, and are very active.

The extent of damage done by them will be determined by the stage of growth of cotton and artificial control measured applied. Knowing when this generation would appear the county demonstration agents throughout the northern half of Alabama warned farmers to be prepared, and the reports indicate that many farmers are ready to poison army worms as needed.

Entomologists here say that poisoning should be applied to cotton where there are immature bolts. If this is not done, the second generation will completely defoliate the cotton, even to peeling the bolts.

Where this is done young bolts generally fail to open. Furthermore the quality of cotton is lowered, thereby reducing the price and adding to the present surplus of low grade cotton from the 1925 crop.

It is not likely that any cotton in central and south Alabama will be damaged, although there may be a few late fields in central Alabama which will need poisoning. The outbreak appeared in north and central Alabama, the heaviest infestation being in northwest Alabama.

HOW conscious we are of our skin! Even one little pimple or blackhead will so embarrass us that we want to hide right away. And eczema, boils, blotches and rashes! Why, these awful things simply destroy all our ambition!

But what confidence we have in ourselves if our skin is clear and unblemished—free from any eruptions or breaking out! A clear skin is one of the greatest possessions in the world—and it is so easy to have it. All that is necessary is to keep our systems full of rich, red, pure blood. S. S. S. helps Nature build this blood. And the impurities that cause these so-called skin disorders are driven right out of the system.

If you want the kind of skin that captivates men and compels the admiration of other women, just remember that you can't have it if your blood is impoverished. But, just build red-blood-cells in your blood with S. S. S. and your dream of a soft, rosy, velvet skin, clear of blemishes, will be realized. Then notice the difference in the way you feel. S. S. S. has proven for generations that it helps Nature build the rich, red blood that makes beautiful skin and healthy bodies. Let S. S. S. prove it for you. Get S. S. S. from any drug store. And get the larger bottle. It's more economical.

TODAY 12 Years Ago

From The Daily of September 13, 1914.

September 13 falling on Sunday, there was no issue of the Daily of that date.

Everything comes to him who waits... including heavy losses.

Boost the fair and you help your community.

Gentlemen prefer blondes. At least the judges in the national beauty contest did.

Mussolini seems to be still enjoying the "bombs rush."

Kings and vice presidents vie with each other in importance, who is the king of Italy anyway?

Buy your acreage now across the river, the subdivision plan is not far away.

Labor Day may be a day of rest, but most people search the day through, laboring to find something to do.

If you can vote for heaven's sake don't forget about it on September 20. Let both these cities poll the largest vote yet recorded.

Three fourths of the land in this state is used for agricultural purpose, now you may judge if agricultural trade is important.

We wonder if the courtesy of telephone operators in saying "thank you" has produced any courtesy on the part of the public, or if the folks are still forgetting that operators are human?

Some day there are going to be many beautiful homes on the north side of the Tennessee river. With a beautiful roadway and two bridges that is to be expected.

Echols Gin has reported the first 100 bales of the season, that means that all other gins are busy and that the 1926 crop, though shorter than last year, will bring better prices.

Listen for Brisbane's echo of the Chinese disturbance in which American warships were engaged in battle. Brisbane will declare that the United States should have been well provided with aeroplanes, in such event the Chinese never would have struck.

ANOTHER STORY OF PROGRESS TO BE TOLD IN THE FAIR.

That Albany-Decatur is progressing along the line of encouraging agricultural trade and expansion will be seen within the next week when exhibits of agricultural worth will be placed and judged at the North Alabama Fair, which fair included the counties of Morgan, Lawrence and Limestone. The work of arranging this fair has been taken care of by Director Hugh Ballew and he deserves credit for his enterprise and willingness to take upon himself a tremendous responsibility. Should he desire to place another fair within the confines of Albany-Decatur next year he will find a greater spirit of co-operation existing in these cities. Our people are just awakening to the possibilities of the giant agricultural affair and they will not hesitate a second time to get into the work heart and soul.

Every citizen of Albany-Decatur as well as Morgan county owes it to the other two counties entered in the exhibit and week of festivity to visit that fair ground, to see what is being accomplished in this section. Morgan population owes it to the Lawrence and Limestone people to show direct interest in the aid that has been given from those two counties, for their exhibits are going to count heavily in the good results to be attained from the first institution of its kind in the Twin Cities.

The Daily has sent 1200 invitations to farmer friends asking them to come into these cities, the Daily would have sent more had there been sufficient time. Like others, it was hard to understand the full meaning of the splendid plan until the machinery was running at full tilt. Next year the Daily hopes to take care of its entire circulation list in the counties of Morgan, Limestone, Lawrence and Cullman.

The fair is going to be successful this year, there will be immediate results felt in a business way. The farmers will learn that these cities are the centers for agricultural trade and trade channels will be benefited by many thousands of dollars within the course of a year.

We should all attend the fair this year, make it a success from our own standpoint, the standpoint of the farmer and everyone else who is concerned.

The Daily takes occasion to thank Mr. Ballew for his splendid and wholehearted effort, much good will come from his able effort.

ROGER BABSON SPEAKS, THE BUSINESS WORLD WONDERS.

When Roger Babson speaks the business world halts, soon that same world sees the truth of his predictions. Of course the business world doesn't know how that statistician brings his conclusions into existence, but when he speaks there is usually only a small interim of time between his prediction and the actual result which he has predicted.

Take for an instance the Florida situation. Babson predicted a break of those land markets about January 1, 1926. Everyone who was interested in Florida knows just how near his prediction came true, those who did not turn loose prior to that time are not so sure that the statistician was not correct when he spoke.

Now Mr. Babson talks of the business condition of the future and what there is in store for the American of two or three years hence. This is Mr. Babson's statement to the Associated Press:

While most things point to several years of prosperity, "a distinct recession in business and possibly a panic within the next two or three years would not be surprising." Roger W. Babson, head of the Babson statistical organization, told delegates to the 73rd annual business conference, which opened here today.

Such a decline would be merely temporary, he added, but when it comes "it will be the result of the over-extension of the installment business, which today is eating into the vitals of business like a cancer."

Readjustment would bring industries to greater heights than ever, he added.

"Business at the present time is good, considering the country as a whole. We are in a period of prosperity and most things point to two or three years of prosperity ahead of us, but most American people are living in a fool's paradise and may be rudely awakened at any time."

The best conditions exist on the Pacific coast and in the Oklahoma section; the poorest in Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, Florida and the Rocky mountain states, he said.

The Babson chart, "a composite barometer of all lines and all sections now stands at 12 per cent above normal."

"Labor is quiet, money is easy, commodities are staple and most industries are enjoying a good volume of business, but there are three flies in the ointment. First: The foreign situation which is still very bad; second: The installment business, which is eating the vitals out of the American people and third: The fact that the manufacturing capacity of almost all industries exceeds the consuming power."

Touching on the stock market, he predicted a decline of 80 points in from one to three years, with the added advice that "those who wish to render a real service today can do so by storing up cash, pending the next panic, rather than by buying securities at the present time."

You will notice that Mr. Babson predicts that the decline in business will not last for a great length of time and that he feels that the country will come out of the depression in better condition than at the beginning of that period.

Business at this time is standing at 12 per cent above normal, says Mr. Babson in looking over his chart. He fails to find any poor business condition prevailing in the Southland, but he includes, of course, the southland at that period of depression when it comes.

Here, however, there is a difference of opinion. The southland is unlike the other sections of the country in that there is a condition akin to a "boom" over the entire South, with the exception of Florida. Alabama will hardly be hard hit by any depression for the reason that this state is constantly in demand from an investment standpoint. Alabama looked upon 1925 as a poor year, it was not a poor year in reality, but other sections enjoyed better business than this state as a whole. This year the tables are reversed and Alabama is expanding because people from the outside realize the possibilities here and because Alabamians readily see the advantage in supporting home institutions with home money. This condition will continue to grow and for that reason it is hardly believable that Alabama will be included in any hard hitting slump.

There is one thing that is vitally and essentially correct however, the installment business is eating the heart and life out of Alabama business, just as it is eating the business vitals in other states. Persons can buy very nearly anything they desire on credit, long time credit, short time credit, any kind of credit, just so long as they move the material the merchant or the manufacturer has to offer.

Business on a cash basis in this state, or a thirty day basis for that matter, is one of the greatest and most needed factors in determining if Alabama is to become a part in the predicted slump in business condition. A thirty day basis of handling accounts will go far toward bringing people to earth again, making them realize the importance of living within their incomes, something that America is not doing at the present time and will not do until this panic, which Mr. Babson predicts, arrives. It is imperative that the credit system is changed, people must learn that unless they have sufficient income to pay for an article within thirty days after purchasing, that it is better that they do not buy at all until such time as they are able to take care of their obligations. Merchants do not do business upon the plan of paying for articles they purchase ninety or more days after they buy. Firms with which they do business demand payment within thirty days and those demands must be met, regardless of whether the individual purchaser has taken care of his account or allowed it to drift while he evens up with some other long time merchant who has grown tired of waiting.

You say that business would be killed by such a plan, certainly business would be halted temporarily, but in the revival of normal conditions there would be a far greater volume of business done and at a less expense. Costs of merchandise also could be lowered.

Babson's prediction is worth something for he is a man who sees into the business world and knows whereof he speaks before he does speak. His statement to the Associated Press was not idle chatter by any means.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Athens News

By D. L. ROSENAU, Jr.

COUNTRY CLUB PROJECTED FOR ATHENS

Rumors are abroad this week to the effect that a country club for Athens in the near future is being projected and an earnest effort will be made to arouse enthusiasm. The scheme as it now appears in its infancy is to purchase sufficient acreage near the city limits for a nine hole golf course, have it lined off by a professional, and erect a modest clubhouse on the property to contain dressing rooms for the members and sufficient space for occasional dances and dinners. At the beginning it is planned to make expenditures on a very modest and careful scale, gradually improving the grounds and clubhouse and making new additions as the organization's financial footing becomes secure and sufficient members are secured. The organization would probably be incorporated for a small amount at the beginning and later be increased.

The need for a country club where local citizens may enjoy golf, picnics, swimming, dances, parties, and have a general gathering place has long been felt, and several efforts have been made to start enthusiasm; it is hoped the present one will terminate successfully. Athens had a country club before the great war, with a large membership, but the war with its activities and the financial depression following soon afterwards caused the old club to die an unnatural death, and the present movement is in the form of a revivor.

ATHENS COLLEGE OPENS

Athens College will open for this session Wednesday morning at ten o'clock, the exercises to be held in McCandless Hall auditorium. The featured speaker of the occasion will be Dr. Stonewall Anderson, general secretary of the educational board of the Methodist Episcopal church, south. Most of the faculty have already returned, and quite a number of new pupils, many of them with their parents, have already arrived in the city. The enrollment this year is said to be about 20 per cent greater than last year.

SEVEN MURDER CASES LIKELY TO BE TRIED

Seven murder cases are likely to be tried at the term of the circuit court which begins here September 20 if the grand jury indicts all those who have been held for probable cause in the preliminary trials. The seven parties are Will Ham, Cora Ham, Onis Harrison, George Harrison, Henry Murphy, and Aaron Weece, white, and George Davis, negro. With a multitude of other criminal cases before the court it is extremely likely that an extra session will be called before Christmas to dispose of some of the cases and clear the docket.

SCHOOL STARTS MOVIES

The State Secondary School located at Athens has inaugurated a series of motion picture shows on Thursday evening of each week, the shows being open to both townspeople and students. Music is furnished on these occasions by the school orchestra under the direction of Miss Moore, head of the department of music. These shows were tried as an experiment last year and met with such great success that W. H. Johnson, president of the institution saw fit to

BAR ASSOCIATION FORMED

The Limestone County Bar Association was organized here Monday the object of the association being to "promote harmony and understanding between the various members of the local bar, and those members of the bar outside of this county," and the following officers were elected to serve for the first year: R. B. Patton, president; Fred Wall, vice-president; W. W. Malone, secretary. The association will have meetings once a month, the meeting to take the form generally of a dinner at the home of one of the members. At its initial meeting the association sponsored a movement to have Limestone and Madison counties constitute one judicial circuit, instead of having Limestone, Madison, Morgan, Cullman, and Lawrence counties all forming one circuit.

Only a few years ago it was being made by the originator in his home kitchen, now manufactured in one of the largest laboratories in the United States, and being sold in car load lots from the Lakes to the Gulf at the rate of over a million bottles yearly.

Hundreds have testified that they suffered for years with constipation, indigestion, gas on stomach, coated tongue, no appetite, no vitality, and a general run-down condition, but by the aid of this marvelous cleanser, eliminating the poisonous waste matter from the system through its free action on the bowels, they now owe their good health to same and once more enjoy hearty meals without any ill effect and no longer suffer with the most common ailment of the day constipation.

This medicine is out-selling any other preparation on the market where it is known. More than a million bottles sold during past year under absolute guarantee to give beneficial results—and less than a dozen bottles returned—a record probably never before established by any other medicine. Every family naturally needs a laxative and system purifier. Can be given to children same as adults. Mild, pleasant, yet very effective. Get the original and genuine as shown above and you guarantee beneficial results. Now sold by leading druggists and dealers in medicine everywhere.

"NELL GWYN" PROMISED AS NOVELTY FILM OF YEAR

A real novelty will be seen at the Princess theater, commencing Monday, when Dorothy Gish's brilliant character study of "Nell Gwyn" will be the feature. It is a true-life romance, richly veined with comedy, the pathos of slum-life struggle, and dramatic love intrigue in royal palace halls.

The picture was made in London in the very haunts once trod by light-hearted Nell. The story follows the adventures of a poor, little orange girl, whose wit and daring made her England's greatest actress, the king's favorite, and a national idol. Paramount is releasing "Nell Gwyn" in the United States and Canada.

SYNOPSIS

Lady Cornish and her husband are watching the gayety at the Grand Garden Ball. Both are socially ostracized because of her having once been a bar-maid. Neither being social climbers they have been forced to accept the friendship of a collection of outcasts by the entertainment which is always provided by Lady Cornish, a free spender. Teddy Sherwood, a wealthy youth but a "commoner" is in a jealous rage because the "rotter" Tony Fortescue, disinherited scion of a noble family has been dancing all evening with the girl Sherwood brought to the ball. The girl is Christie Banning, a young actress unable to find work because of the death of her sister. She plans to dance the clock around and commit suicide.

p'e. That one of those blue and gold children could die when life seemed so essentially her right! It was cruel, it was wrong, it was disturbing. But when Christie pressed herself to the managers who had been so eager for the sympathy of the two sisters, expecting to be able to work to the honest and memory of the girl from whom she had never been separated before, they shrugged their shoulders and raised their eyebrows and shook their heads.

"My dear," they said, "it's a rotten shame, no one knows that better than we do. But, you see, the value of your turn lay in the fact that you were a young girl. Without your sister—Very sorry. He-ye could find a young man, a performing dog, a little monkey—Well, there it is. Good morning, my dear. Keep in touch."

All went well. From London they were booked into the large city where extended engagements of from two to three weeks followed as a matter of course. Outside all the stage doors at every performance crowds of women and girls pushed their heads behind to see the new favourites come forth, to cry out

"Hello, Sissie!" to Christie and "Hello, Christie!" to Sissie and roar with laughter when, in a graphic dumb show, the mistake was pointed out. They revelled in triumph, these two, and with the unbelievable money that they drew at the end of the week set up wardrobes of perfectly appalling garments, bought every inappropriate hat that could be found, drove about in antiquated flies in memory of their father; and covered themselves with as many heads and bangles as were worn by Zulu princesses. Also they remembered to send frequent postal orders to their less successful friends among the Pierrots and took dancing lessons from the best available masters in every visited city.

Every day found them hard at work polishing up their best numbers, rehearsing new ones, devising original and ingenious bits of business, practising effects which would look as though they were spontaneous, improvisations that were carefully thought out and back answers to the leader of the orchestra that had all the appearance of being made on the spur of the moment.

Their greatest assets, and they were wise enough to recognize them, were joy, laughter, spontaneity and sweetness. They never forgot that line in the paragraph by "The Gentleman with the Eyeglasses" as to their being "Wendy's children who had played truant from the brain of J. M. Barrie. They clung to that with all the desperation of tired swimmers to a spar. It gave them a patent, a trademark, a cachet, a motto, and a never-failing cue to new numbers. They were everybody's little angels, the Cockney sparrows on the sunny side of the City streets, and so they chirped rather than sang. They remained, so to speak, in the parlour at a party, showing off in their Sunday frocks to a circle of neighbours. It was a very well thought out, very cunning and excellent and universal. They knew that if they could earn the extraordinary distinction of having, it said about them that they were far too nice to be on the stage, poor dears, they were as safe as the Bank of England.

And when the night in the trenches of March of 1914 almost exactly two years after they had sprung into fame, Sissie caught a chill on a draughty stage, played till the end of the week with a high temperature, was taken to the hospital on Sunday morning with double pneumonia and on Thursday morning was followed to the grave by nearly every woman and child in Manchester. No such outburst of emotion had ever been enacted in that practical city, and if there were no very expensive wreaths dropped into that little hole in the earth there were thousands of good tears.

Poor little Christie, aghast, dumfounded, stricken down by grief as a young tree might be torn from its roots by lightning, haunted the graveyard for several untranslatable days. And then, taking hold of herself with a great grip, she returned to life feeling as though she had had all one side of her body cut off under a frightful operation. Letters and telegrams of condolence, very real and sincere, poured down upon her from all parts of England, and the members of her profession met and passed a resolution of deep regret. It is indeed true to say that the death of Sissie came as a shock to all kinds and conditions of people.

But Christie made no attempt to find a young man, a performing dog, or a little monkey. Nor did she keep in touch. It was written that her day was over. At eighteen she found that she might just as well be in the car with the managers. Those were two very sorry. He-ye could find a young man, a performing dog, a little monkey—Well, there it is. Good morning, my dear. Keep in touch."

With the usual improvidence and generosity of her kind she had saved nothing. She marked time for a few weeks on the money that came from the sale of her foolish trifles while she made up her mind as to the manner in which she should rejoin her twin. An offer of marriage from Teddy Sherwood, made for the twentieth time, did not tempt her away from the determination to make her final exit. If she had loved him, she would have been glad to remain alive, go far away into the country, look after a garden, have children and be a good wife. But she didn't love him. He frightened her. He was kind enough and sane enough on ordinary occasions, a sort of self-appointed brother during the six months that he had followed her from city to city, never missing a performance, looking after the stage set in which she and her sister had done their turn and the increasing luggage that went with them from place to place, but in the moments when he had sprung out of his colored reserve he had shown her something of madness something of a passion that made him ugly. She was afraid. And there was no one else. And as having booked a ticket on the 10 o'clock train that was to cross the terrible bridge, she had accepted Sherwood's invitation to the Grand Garden Ball in order that she might dance until the last moment.

By an odd and unexplainable fluke, waster as she knew him to be, because the stories of his misdeeds were common property, frequently advertised in the wrong columns of the newspapers, he was the first man who had ever put an extra seat in her pulpit, and as the moment approached when she knew that he was due to keep his appointment with Lady George for a ham sandwich and a glass or two, and she should have gone back to her rooms to write a letter to the coroner, life had become too precious a thing to lose, especially when, after having held her in his arms for two hours, he bent down suddenly and kissed her lips.

For a moment she went limp and giddy. The whole floor swam in a blur of colours. Then she seemed to rise as though on wings, with a brain that was flooded with music. "Oh, good Lord!" said Tony. "What's the row? I'm desperately sorry. Do forgive me."

That a girl should faint because she was kissed was an utterly new thing to him, and he had kissed all and sundry without thinking twice. And now that he came to think about it, there had been something—what could he call it—fey—in the eyes of this girl to whom he had been drawn as by a magnet and had always wanted to meet. She must be ill. Selfish fool that he was he had worn her out in an orgy of dancing. It wasn't his unprejudiced kiss that had affected her. It was sheer physical fatigue. And so, much ashamed of himself as he still had the knack of being, and acting on the tip of an impulse, as he always did, he picked her up in his arms, carried her through the dancers to a room in the foyer that was the office of a friend connected with the management and set her down with the utmost care and gentleness.

And when she looked up into his distressed and anxious face she saw not the disreputable devil-may-care, handsome, dissipated night bird, deep in cynicism, but, in an imagination that had been steeped in fairy tales, a very perfect knight in a coat of mail, gallant and chivalrous and humble. And when this flash of second sight faded, which had it been communicated then to any of Tony's associates, would have brought forth a yell of derision and laughter, Christie said to herself the Fulham Road language to which she had been bred, and into which she fell in moments of unwatchfulness. "This man one of the boys! Outside, maybe, but underneath he's the only bloomin' gent I've ever struck!"

Hartselle News

By J. A. WEST

Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock all the teachers in the two schools here, will be tendered a reception at the high school building by the members of the local P. T. A. This is an annual custom of this organization, and does much to make the new teachers feel at home and inspires them in their tiresome work in the school room.

Everything is in readiness for the opening date of the chautauqua Tuesday afternoon. The director is on the ground, and from now until the opening date, organization of everything necessary for a successful event will be looked after.

J. E. Haynes is quite ill at his home here, he having been confined to his bed for several days, and recently suffered a relapse, after being up. For many years Mr. Haynes has operated a photo studio here, and has many friends who regret deeply his invalidism.

A business meeting of the missionary society of the First Methodist church will be held Monday afternoon.

Rev. Paul Cook, publicity director of the Athens Female College spent Sunday here with friends.

and Sunday evening took part in the Epworth League meeting at the Methodist church, aiding greatly in the rendition of the program for that hour.

W. T. Tiller, principal of the M. C. H. S. filled the pulpit at the morning service at the Methodist church in the absence of Rev. J. B. Rice. Rev. Rice filled the evening appointment.

The streets were filled with cotton wagons Saturday, and the hum of the cotton gin made music all day. It was estimated that more than fifty bales were marketed here that day. Farmers are disposed to sell the first pickings, and are meeting their fertilizer notes in many instances before they come due.

W. T. Stewart Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Stewart, will enter Birmingham-Southern this term, having graduated at the M. C. H. S. last session.

The Dr. Booth class at the Methodist Sunday School will be tendered a chicken barbecue and fox race Thursday evening, at a convenient place near town. Those who have had the pleasure of attending one of these barbecues, the doctor knows so well how to stage, are looking forward to the time in great anticipation of the good time and good eats that always abound in plenty.

Hugh S. Sherrill, who for the past several years has been in the grocery and feed business at this point, has severed his connection with the firm of Poole and Sherrill, who for many years has operated a successful merchandise brokerage business here. They have taken offices over the Peoples Drug store.

Mr. Hugh Sherrill is a splendid business man, and will be a valuable addition to this already successful business. His many friends wish him unbounded success in his new alignment.

The city authorities are working on a plan to provide more room on Main street, and it is understood that they will inaugurate an early date new parking regulations for automobiles. It is quite possible that cars on this business thoroughfare will be parked parallel with the curb, thus affording more room for traffic from curb to curb.

Mr. Higgins who for the past several months has been the very efficient motor traffic cop here, will leave Wednesday for a two weeks vacation.

Work is progressing steadily on the water works system, under the direction of a competent superintendent.

MIDDLE EAR INJURE BY INFECTIONS

May Begin in the Nose but Extends to Eustachian Tube, and, if Neglected, I Damage Organ of Hearing.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

RECENTLY I have had a half dozen letters asking for an article on nasal catarrh and ear trouble. What we call "catarrhal deafness" is so very prevalent in North America that hardly a household escapes an affliction of this type. It is too bad that more attention is not given to the prevention and cure of the common cold. A good deal is being said these days about a concerted movement on the part of the doctors, chemists, bacteriologists, and other scientists, to find a means of guarding the human family against colds. It is to be hoped that success will crown their efforts.

As I see it, there should be education of the public to the seriousness of colds. The fact that you take cold is an evidence of lowered vitality. The immediate effect of the cold is to lower the resistance in the tissues involved in the inflammation. This weakness permits more serious germs than the cold germs to enter the system. Pus germs, the germs of influenza, and the germs of pneumonia may get into the blood stream through the tissues weakened by an attack of the common cold.

The nasal passages open directly into the nasal sinuses, and through a tube they open into the middle ear, throat, nose, sinuses, the tube to the ear, and the middle ear itself, are all lined with a mucous membrane. There is no borderline or boundary of any sort between the mucous membrane of the anatomy. If a cold attacks the nose, it is not long before the other parts are reached by the disease process.

We will assume that the cold begins in the nose. It extends up the Eustachian tube to the middle ear. The order of recovery is the same. The nasal tissues may perhaps resume a fairly normal state. It may be a long time, however, before the inflammation in the Eustachian tube and middle ear subsides. In the meantime there is more or less thickening of the membranes. This thickening narrows the passageway, interfering with the drainage and ventilation of the middle ear. The inner covering of the ear drum is the mucous membrane which lines the inner ear. This may become thickened, too.

Connecting the ear drum and the inner ear is a chain of tiny bones suspended across the inner ear cavity. These little bones and their joints are covered by the mucous membrane. Where the foot-plate of the "stirrup bone" fits into the opening of the skull where the inner ear is, the same delicate membrane is found.

You can see that thickening of the membrane lining the ear drum and covering the little bones and their joints is intimately associated with the foot-plate of the stirrup bone will cause trouble. The free movement of drum and the hearing is interfered with, and the hearing is lessened in consequence.

Answers to Health Queries

C. E. J. W. Q.—Are cherries, raspberries and watermelon fattening?
2.—Is it harmful to go on a low day fast?
3.—How can I lose weight?
A.—No.
2.—Yes.
3.—Weight reduction is merely a matter of self-control as regards diet. You should eat sparingly of starches, sugars and fats. Exercise is, of course, essential. For particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

A.—An operation would be the only remedy. See a plastic surgeon for his opinion.

K. B. Q.—What should a girl of 13, 5 ft. 2 inches tall, weigh?

2.—What foods will help to build up the body? Will a tonic make you gain in weight?

A.—She should weigh about 110 pounds.

2.—A well-balanced diet, plenty of rest and sleep and regular outdoor exercise should bring about results. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

3.—If the diet is watched and the child has plenty of exercise, there should be no harm in keeping the weight normal. The diet should be properly outlined for the individual. He should weigh about 65 pounds.

A. E. Q.—Will drinking kerosene once a week cure stomach trouble?

A.—It is never wise to take any in the nature of a drug or for any purpose whatsoever unless it has been prescribed for you by a doctor.
